

The Blueprint

Learn more: teachersdeserveit.com/for-schools

The hub, leadership coaching, classroom observations, the vibe check, the dashboard and the blog, working as one system. Sorted below by what your school achieves rather than by what we deliver.

Where you land in the range depends on two things: which phase your district is in, and how many supports your buildings need. Scoped with you before anything is quoted.

WHAT A SCHOOL ACHIEVES

Teacher time back

Find a resource when you need it. Borrow a colleague's work instead of building from scratch. Stop rebuilding what someone across the district already made.

Staff culture monitoring

Take the pulse in seconds. Watch it move across a year. Hear honest input without asking anyone to say it to your face.

Collaboration and shared practice

Share across grades and buildings without adding a meeting. Keep the work when people leave. Build a library that grows instead of resetting.

New teacher support

Ramp new hires without pulling veterans off their own work. On-demand answers at the moment of confusion. Feedback that isn't attached to evaluation.

PD coherence

Map what you already run and see where it overlaps. Find the real gaps instead of stacking on another initiative. Fit development into the calendar you have.

Stress relief

Small practical changes rather than new initiatives. Support between PD days. An end to being the only person in your role in the building.

Retention and staff investment

See what is driving people to stay or leave. Show staff their input changed something. Track risk with data instead of instinct.

Instructional growth

See what is happening in classrooms instead of assuming. Name what is working before naming what isn't. Set goals staff believe are reachable.

Leadership capacity

Think through decisions with someone outside the building. Prepare for the conversations that keep getting postponed. Decide which PD to say no to.

Proof and budget defense

Turn qualitative work into numbers. Show a board what changed and by how much. Defend the line item when budget season arrives.

However you start, you have the proof before the budget conversation

Early March: one page, where you started against where you are, formatted to forward

In hand before April and May budget talks, not during them

June: the full year, what changed, and what carries forward

Contracts run January to December or August to July, two summer months off

What it is made of, and how it unfolds

Six parts working together, across three phases. The phases describe how a partnership grows over time. They are not a ladder the smaller offerings sit on.

THE THREE PHASES

PHASE ONE

Ignite

Leadership team and a pilot group of 10 to 25 educators. Early wins, named and measured, before anything scales.

PHASE TWO

Accelerate

Full staff. Strategies get implemented building-wide, with observation and coaching behind them.

PHASE THREE

Sustain

Systems hold through turnover. Your team builds the capacity to run this without us.

THE PARTS

The hub

Searchable by role and grade, contributed to in one click, with usage visible to you.

Classroom observations

Fixed look-fors, strengths named before gaps, separate from evaluation.

Leadership coaching

Thinking room outside the building, and capacity built to run it yourself.

The vibe check

Mood, Energy, Belonging, Purpose and Needs, trended across the year.

The dashboard

Everything reported in one place, populated automatically.

The blog

Three pieces a week your staff would choose on their own.

WHERE THE SMALLER OFFERINGS FIT

The Pulse

The weekly staff read, on its own. Five dimensions trended across the year, a monthly question on wins and struggles, and a monthly report telling you what to do about it.

The Focus

A tool every three weeks for the area you already named. Thirteen across the year, plus two sessions with your leadership team.

The Cohort

Ten people, four sessions, full hub and blog access all year, measured from a baseline taken before the first session.

Each one stands alone

They are not steps on a ladder. A school with a culture problem and a school losing new teachers need different things, and neither has to buy the other first. Schools run one of the smaller offerings for years without ever buying anything else. The Blueprint is what it looks like when a district wants all of it working together.

What a partnership assumes

Contracts run January to December or August to July, two summer months off

A contract signed in August yields roughly seven months of data by early March

Enough for a real trend on weekly measures, thinner on year-long outcomes

One recommended next step at each review, never a menu of options
